

Wedding Ceremony

Officiant: Family, friends, and honored guests, we are gathered here today to witness and celebrate the union of Andrey and Pei Pei.

We come together from different corners of the globe — from the vast landscapes of Russia and the vibrant heart of Taiwan—to honor a love that knows no borders. Today is not merely a meeting of two people, but a beautiful convergence of two cultures, and two families.

Andrey and Pei Pei, you have traveled individual paths to find one another. In choosing to walk the rest of your journey together, you prove that while your origins may be different, your destination is the same. Your union strengthens the bridge between your worlds, built on a foundation of mutual respect, understanding, and profound love.

The Vows

Officiant: The promises you make today are the bedrock of your marriage. They are the words that will bind your lives together in the years to come.

Andrey, please share your vows with Pei Pei.

The Exchange of Rings

Officiant: You have committed yourselves to one another through your words. We will now seal those promises with the exchange of rings.

The circle of the ring, with no beginning and no end, serves as a symbol of eternity and the continuous cycle of love and the promises you make to one another, regardless of where in the world you may be.

Officiant (to Andrey): Andrey, please take the ring, place it on Pei Pei's finger, and repeat after me: "Pei Pei, I give you this ring as a symbol of my love and my lifelong commitment to you."

(Andrey repeats the phrase and places the ring)

The Closing

Officiant: Andrey and Pei Pei, by the power vested in me, and in the presence of those who love you most, I now pronounce you husband and wife.

You may seal this union with a kiss.
